

CONFERENCE ON FACILITATING EMPIRICAL STUDIES OF JUDICIAL BEHAVIOR ON CONSTITUTIONAL COURTS FROM A COMPARATIVE PERSPECTIVE

TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW
MAY 11-12, 2018 • FORT WORTH, TEXAS

The Texas A&M University School of Law Program in Law and Social Science is hosting an NSF-funded conference on “Facilitating Empirical Studies of Judicial Behavior on Constitutional Courts from a Comparative Perspective” on May 11-12, 2018. The conference will bring together an interdisciplinary group of scholars who study high courts from a comparative perspective. Our goal is to develop a path forward for larger-scale empirical research on national high courts. We hope to assemble a collection of existing data and resources, discuss strategies for extending data availability and comparability across national systems, and encourage collaborations among researchers.
